At the LaM, you will feel at home!

Located 20 minutes from Lille, the LaM is a museum and garden whose atypical collection provides a unique panorama of 20th- and 21st-century creation.

The LaM was inaugurated in 1983 to house the modern art donation made by Geneviève and Jean Masurel. With L'Aracine's donation of works in 1999, it became a museum of reference for modern art, contemporary art and art brut.

Make your way across 4,000 m² of exhibition area and acquaint yourself with a collection comprising over 8,000 works by such artists as Georges Braque, Daniel Buren, Aloïse Corbaz, Henry Darger, Paul Klee, Fernand Léger, Augustin Lesage, Annette Messager, Joan Miró, Amedeo Modigliani, Pablo Picasso, Kiki Smith, to name but a few. Retrospectives devoted to great artists on the national and international art scenes punctuate the seasons.

The LaM is also an outstanding park accommodating monumental sculptures by Alexander Calder, Richard Deacon and Pablo Picasso, as well as a library containing more than 40,000 publications, an auditorium, a book and gift shop and a café-restaurant.

The LaM's team is on hand to welcome you all year round, for guided or self-guided tours, workshops on artistic practices, live performances, encounters and lectures.

A cultural destination in a green setting on no account to be missed out on!

Permanent collection

A unique, decompartmentalised vision of art

True to its commitment to writing a history of art and modernity that takes full account of marginal and unusual artistic practices, the LaM traces another history of art and modernity by exhibiting its collection in decompartmentalised fashion. By creating a dialogue between the fields of modern and contemporary art and art brut within the same exhibition areas, the Museum encourages interactions between works by artists from a wide variety of backgrounds, whether or not they are the products of traditional circles.
